

“I have been running the SportScience Lab for nine years and our synthetic turf playing field is an important component to our programming. This past year we analyzed the marketplace for products that we thought advanced artificial turf technology looking for the best surface for our studio. We were blown away by PrimePlay synthetic turf. We needed something that would look great on TV and provide the feel-under-foot characteristics that top professional athletes expect. The PrimePlay field looks fantastic, the combination of dense grass blades and hidden infill really pop to everyone that visits, and the camera loves it. I have received nothing but compliments since we put the field in. The product couldn't be more impressive and the support from the company has been first rate. The PrimePlay field is science at its best and I'm pumped to have it as an integral part of our show for years to come. I would recommend this product to everyone looking to purchase their next artificial turf field.
